

Dwane Holloman is a Digital Communications

major with a minor in Film and Video who prefers to use Adobe Illustrator as his art medium. In his time at Albright, Dwane has been assistant...

coach for the girls volleyball team, co-hosted his own radio show at WXAC called Fan Talk and interned as a graphic designer at Student Summer Storage designing creative content for marketing. Dwane is a huge sports fan. Advertisements have always interested him. Dwane loves how people tell stories in different ways. He wants his work to have a face to it so that he can reach people better.

Dwane says that being at Albright helped him grow as a designer and person. He's looking forward to getting a full time job after graduation at an advertising agency in graphic design. Dwane's designs can be seen at <https://dhdesignssp.wordpress.com/>.

Dwane's advice to future students is to ask for advice from the people ahead of you. Your designs matter more than how well you do at school. When you go on job interviews, ask the interviewer how they got where they are today. You can learn from their stories, improve yourself and decide a path for yourself.

Dwane believes that his art has impacted the world because art is a service, and different services can impact people's lives. He works on a more personal level with his designs, wanting to show the people what's behind the art.
